GERMAN THRONE NEEDED JAZZ

American Music Might Have Saved Kaiser, Satirist Says

TAKES PLACE OF BOOZE

Declares Orchestras Make You
Drunk Without Alcohol

(BY FRANK E. MASON)

BERLIN — International News Service—Jazz music might have saved the Kaiser from his fall. "Aber Ach! he never learned it," regrets Hans Siemsen, the satirist, explaining jazz to Germany in the current issue of the Welt Buehne, or World Stage.

"America, so they say, has no more Siemsen. But they don't need it. They have jazz bands. These are orchestras which can make you drunk without alcohol. Jazz is a cross between European dance music and American negro music.

"There is a piano, a violin and perhaps a bass viol. But especially there are cymbals, triangles, drums and a variety of nameless, highly fantastic instruments which, rather than producing music, cause a series of musical din.

"The fat man who plays these instruments is the soul, the good spirit of the jazz band. He doesn't play them all at once; sometimes he uses this, sometimes that. When the table is full of musical appliances doesn't suffice he grabs something from the wall. The pianist and violinist play well, at least, very unEuropean, but the fat man surpasses them all. He gurgles on a bassoon-like horn (the saxophone is unknown to Germany) an independent base melody without bothering in the least about what his comrades are playing.

"Then he decides that for the next passage of music a flute melody is more suitable and picks up a flute. Or he tinkles a triangle. He always knows exactly what is necessary and supplies the music with anything it lacks, whether a boom, a shrill cry, or a deep-toned mysterious growl. And if he hasn't anything else to do he sits down beside the pianist, who for a single person is already doing pretty well in imitating a four-handed player, and plays whatever comes into his head—perhaps a chromatic scale. And at the same time he sings a negro melody.

"Perhaps you think that this is ridiculous. It is comical—but it is also beautiful. Like the cubist pictures of Picasso, or the acquarels of Klee. Seemingly senseless and not harmonious, in truth in its very discord it has harmony.

"This music, this rhythm which contradicts all common sense is irresistible. Like poison or alcohol, jazz music gets into your very bones, into your limbs. It sets those who really understand it into motion like marionettes. (But it must be a real jazz band. The fat man must be a musical genius. There are frightfully poor imitations. Anyone who has heard them must think me an idiot. Beware of imitations!)
FALL UNDER SPELL
"The couple dancing to this hypnotic music are not moving of their own volition, but are controlled by the music. At least, they are in the power of the music if they dance well. They proceed slowly and calmly to the beat of the bass drum. Suddenly the shrill tone of the flutes penetrates their very bones, their knees bend and they make several steps with swaying bodies until the bass drum steadies them. Then comes the run on the clarinet and they turn about like a corkscrew. This music controls the dancers as if they were dolls jumping at the pulling of a string.

"It's a wonderful sensation to surrender yourself to this rhythm, with neither will nor reason. If you have a jazz band you need no brandy; you need no gin.
"But to the most beautiful characteristic of jazz is its complete lack of dignity. Jazz destroys the last semblance of dignity, of stiffness and propriety. Anyone who fears to make himself ridiculous cannot dance to jazz. The German professor or courtier couldn't dance it. If only all the professor and privy councilors and ministers were compelled to dance jazz. How human, how amiable, how comical they all would become. The humbug circle of stupidity, vanity and dignity could not exist. If the Kaiser had only danced to jazz, all this would never have taken place. Aber, ach! he never learned it. To be German Kaiser is easier than to dance jazz.

posal offered in this meeting to change the decision of May 6, and is certain he agreed to no variance of the original proposition.

"I am directed by the president to inform you," the note concludes, "that the government of the United States cannot agree that the island of Yap was included in the decision of May 7, or in any other agreement of the supreme council. And in addition that as the island of Yap must form an indispensable part of the international communications, it is essential that it be free and unhampered use for such purposes should not be limited or controlled by any one power.

"Even on the assumption that the island of Yap should be included in the mandate by Japan, it is not conceivable that other powers should not have free and unhampered access to and use of the island for the landing and operation of cables. This is a right which the United States would be disposed to grant upon any of its unfortified islands which may be essential for such purpose."

The Japanese reply to this note states that the Japanese delegates were not present at the meetings of the supreme council of April 21, May 6 and May 7, and that "in consequence, the imperial government have no means of ascertaining what views were expressed by the American delegates at those meetings."

Assuming, however, that President Wilson and Secretary Lansing previously had stated that Yap should be internationalized, the Japanese note continues that in the opinion of the imperial government such fact argues in no way in favor of the contention of the American government that the island of Yap stands outside the islands that it was decided should be held under the mandate of Japan, unless they can establish at the same time the further fact that the representations of President Wilson and Mr. Lansing were accepted by the council and the latter decided to exclude Yap from the mandatory territory assigned to Japan.

Referring to the view of the American note that if Yap had been included in the supreme council's decision that decision would have been in more specific language, the Japanese reply which is the fourth note, states that "it is more in accordance with sound principles of interpretation to say that the fact should have been set down with especial clearness if exclusion were meant, exception always required to be stated definitely."

The Japanese note then makes this important:
"Nor are the imperial government alone and unsupported in their interpretation of the decision for they are in receipt of authentic information that the governments of Great Britain and France being of the opinion as the Japanese government on the matter made statements to that effect in their replies to the American note in November last.

"To sum up," the note continues, "since in a matter of such a grave nature as the establishment of mandatory territories only what appears on the face of the decisions should be accepted as authoritative, the imperial government cannot agree in giving an extraordinary and unusual interpretation to the decision on a vague ground that certain thoughts and intentions not expressed in the text thereof existed. In the mind of the delegate of one power only."

The Japanese note says that the American proposal that even should Yap be given under a Japanese mandatory, the island should be open to all nations as a cable station, is a question which "seems to be one which should be freely settled by the nation which has the charge of the place, namely Japan."

COMMISSIONERS VOTE TO TAKE PART IN GOOD ROADS DAY OBSERVANCE

County commissioners announced Monday they will unite with the Chamber of Commerce in the observance of Good Roads' day, Friday.

The date had been previously set for Friday of last week, but rain and the condition of the roads prevented work on the highways.

Commissioners at first declared the date would be changed from that originally intended. "The Chamber of Commerce desires that we observe Good Roads day on Friday and commissioners will join with them in celebration of the county at that time," Walter W. Craig, president of the board of county commissioners, said.

Farmers and volunteer workers have been requested by the two organizations to prepare for Good Roads day, Friday.

"I have gained seventeen pounds by taking Tanlac and am now a well and happy woman," said Mrs. Charles Kiesel, 1059 Big Falls Ave., North Hill, Ohio.

"For over a year before I got Tanlac I had about as bad a case of indigestion it seemed as anyone could have. I never enjoyed a meal, and at times my stomach was so bad that even water hurt it. I was so nervous I couldn't even bear to hear the door bell ring. I didn't even have strength enough to make up a bed or sweep the floor without stopping to rest. I don't believe anyone ever suffered worse than I did without giving up in utter despair; why, I was almost helpless.

"I had about given up hope when some of my friends advised me to take Tanlac. After I had been taking it a short while my indigestion left me completely and my appetite returned with full force. I just can't get enough to eat now, and my nerves are so steady I sleep like I did when a child. I do all my work without the least bit of trouble and feel just fine. If anyone has any doubt as to what Tanlac has done for me let them ask me, I can soon convince them. I shall always say a good word for Tanlac."—Adv.

CITIZEN CAMPS TO OPEN IN JULY

U. S. to Offer Military Training to Men, 16 to 45

GOVERNMENT TO PAY BILLS

Courses of Instruction Divided Into Three Classes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(By International News Service)—The War Department is about to launch a campaign to interest the young men of the United States in the Citizens' Military Training Camps, which will open in July and August in each of the various Corps Areas. The courses of instruction will be available for persons between the ages of sixteen and forty-five, efforts will be concentrated upon the recruiting of youths from sixteen to nineteen years of age, who will be eligible for training in the so-called "Red" camps, and eventual service in the organized "reserve" of the American forces.

The training camps will be located as follows:

- First Corps Area—Camp Devens, Mass.
- Second Corps Area—Camp Dix, N. J., or Plattsburg, N. Y., or both.
- Third Corps Area—Camp Meade, Maryland.
- Fourth Corps Area—Camp Jackson, South Carolina.
- Fifth Corps Area—Camp Knox, Ky., or Camp Sherman, Ohio, or both.
- Sixth Corps Area—Camp Grant, Ill., or Fort Sheridan, Ill., or both.
- Seventh Corps Area—Fort Snelling, Minn., and Camp Pike, Ark.
- Eighth Corps Area—Fort Logan, Col., and Camp Travis, Tex., or Camp Stanley, Tex.
- Ninth Corps Area—Presidio, San Francisco, Cal., and Camp Lewis, Wash.

Under plans worked out by the general staff, the courses of instruction will be divided into three classes, to be known respectively as the Red, White and Blue courses.

THE RED COURSE
Physically fit male citizens between the ages of sixteen and forty-five of average general intelligence and good moral character, are eligible for the Red course. Those accepted will be given elementary military training, which will include the duties of the private, small arms rifle practice, guard duty, camping and marching, individual cooking, personal hygiene, physical development, discipline and morale.

The object of the Red course is to bring together young men of all types, both native and foreign born, to develop closer national and social unity, to teach the privileges, duties and responsibilities of American citizenship, and to stimulate the interest of the youth of the country in the importance of military training as a benefit to the individual, taking such training as an asset vital in the problem of national defense.

THE WHITE COURSE
Any physically fit enlisted man of the Organized Reserves who has passed his nineteenth birthday and is not over forty-five years of age is eligible for admission to the White course. The object of this course is to qualify selected privates of the Organized Reserves as non-commissioned officers, so that they will be capable of training recruits in the duties of privates and in leading them in active service. Graduates of the White course will be eligible to compete for commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps. The course is also intended to provide further military training for civilians who have had the Red course or its equivalent.

THE BLUE COURSE
To the Blue course will be admitted civilians, warrant or non-commissioned officers of the Regular Army, National Guard or enlisted Reserve Corps who will attain the age of twenty-one years before graduation and who have the required educational qualifications. All candidates must have completed the training prescribed for the Red course and the White course, or the equivalent thereof.

EXPENSES PAID.
The government will pay all charges of transportation and subsistence, clothing, equipment, laundry and medical attention, and members of the National Guard, Regular Army or Reserve Corps ordered to the camps will receive pay at the rate authorized by law. Civilians authorized to attend camps will not receive pay.

Immigrant Girl. From Poland Wins Fame and Fortune in Movie World

Eugene O'Brien and Ina Claire in Feature Offerings—Screen Directory

(BY ESTHER WAGNER.)
A NZIA Yezierska is in Los Angeles helping to film her book, "Hungry Hearts."
 She was an immigrant from Poland.
 Poor. Unlettered. Ambitious. She worked in a garment factory. Then as a domestic. As a cook she earned a scholarship in a domestic science school.
 But that wasn't what she wanted. She meant to write. She went to night school after days of hard toil. Fame and money have come to her with the recent publication of her book, "Hungry Hearts."
 A dinner was given in her honor at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York.
 Less than two years ago she went into that hotel thru an employee's entrance tunnel.
 I was so down and out that I did not have the spunk to ask for work as a waitress," she says. "I knew I didn't look good enough for that. All I asked was a job as scullery maid, dishwasher or scrub woman. And even that was refused."
 Here's the real story of a modern Cinderella.
 Her movie contract is with Gold-

"Worlds Apart"

HERE'S a picture that the paperback novel lovers are going to love and admire, especially Eugene O'Brien, known as the most exquisite lover in the movies, is the wronged hero.
 Right from the start Eugene gets your sympathy, and his lucky for him that he does, otherwise, things might seem different. You see, he is pitted by a bee-nut-tiful society against a girl who is not good enough to make the marriage worth while (as it anybody who had a chance to marry Eugene would even think of money. Well, Hugh, as O'Brien is in the picture, decides he will go to the dogs, vividly portrayed by his putting a quart of something in his coat pocket, jumping into the country roads like a demon.
 He comes to a nice little house where he meets the girl. She was poor and tried hard to be decent, but he finally succumbed to the wishes of the ratty little villain and was laughing at the little tea house when Hugh arrived. At a moment when the ratty individual isn't looking, he tearfully decides to end it all and forthwith jumps over the railroad tracks, understanding, is still a man at heart and jumps right in after her, does the rescue act nicely, and takes her to his city apartment to dry and recuperate. As they both are down on humanity and the world in general, they rapidly become married and then the fun begins. The girl marries in order to get home and food, he marries to get the beautiful society girl who has "spurned" him. And so on. Haven't you seen a read about that same state of affairs dozens of times?
 However, this trip the story has lots of interest. Its cast is all to good, including as it does Miss Francesca Billington and Olive Tell, the latter being the tearful damsel who tried so hard to be decent. Miss Tell has never thrilled me particularly and doesn't this time, either.
 The short scenes and the Chinatown shots are interesting. So is the fox hunt and the society. But the fadeout is going to prove a disappointment to the sixteen year olds who like Eugene so well.
 It shows him kissing the hand of his now adored and adoring wife, with the villains all foiled and the cast regaining admiration. Now can you imagine Eugene kissing anyone's hand? Neither can I.
 The film theatre is showing "Worlds Apart" as its feature production.

is charm, utterly aspects the formula which his aunt had inaugurated. Swimming, dancing, and lessons on how to sit, leave a room, pick up a handkerchief, etc., take the place of commercial courses and the study of little birds and insects.
 That Mr. Bevans ultimately becomes seriously concerned in the future matrimonial prospects of one of his pupils goes without saying. A pretty romance theirs becomes, with Lila Lee doing duty as the loved one. "The Charm School" is beautifully staged, well directed and exceptionally well acted. It was adapted from a Saturday Evening Post story by Alice Duer Miller.
 It's as light as foam but mighty good entertainment. The Faurot is featuring this production.

SPRING SEASON IS THE BLOOD TONIC SEASON

Be Sure About Your Blood Condition. If You Are Pale and Run-Down You Need Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the Best Blood Tonic
MAKES BLOOD RICH AND RED
 Foremost as a Blood-Builder for 30 Years. Begin Taking it Today and Notice the Improvement

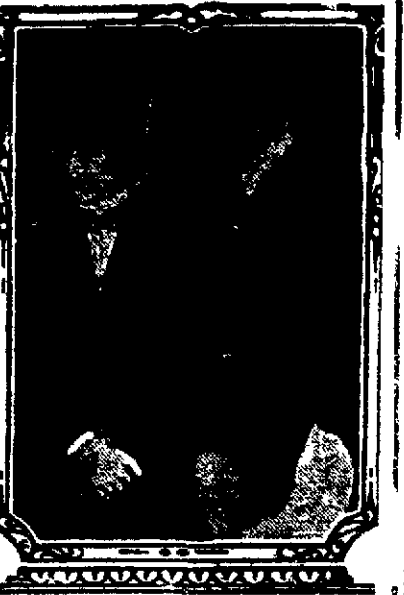

Find out just where you stand this Spring. Is your health good or bad? There is no half way. You may think you are well enough if you are able to get around every day. But are you enjoying robust health? Are you as full of vigor as you should be?
 Spring is the time to ask yourself these questions. You are not able to overhaul the human system the way you can an engine. But you can tell whether you are not in good trim.
 For example, if you like so many people now, feel drowsy and listless and tired—if you find no pleasure in living, little interest in your work, and if you are pale and wan, you'll find your blood is not good. You need a blood tonic.
 Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the best you can take. It gives new life to the red corpuscles in your blood by increasing the supply of oxygen to all the cells in your body. The poison or waste matter is thrown off and your blood is purified and strengthened.
 The result is that you put your health on a sound basis and you have no doubt about how you feel. You know you are well. It is unmistakable, because you eat heartily, sleep well, and feel full of vigor.
 Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan from your druggist. He sells it in tablet form or liquid form, so that you can take whichever is most convenient. They have the same medicinal value. Be sure you get the Genuine Gude's Pepto-Mangan, with the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Adv.

Bunty, the heroine in the piece, is a delightful personality. She is the daughter in a motherless home where she manages her father and two brothers and manipulates various events that come to concern her and hers with a sure and steady hand, a canny eye for the future and a never failing sense of justice and humor.
 Bunty's father, Tammam Bigger, is a deacon in the kirk and a stern man. Quite a bit of managing does Tammam take. Bunty's brother, Jamie, goes to Glasgow and steals a hundred pounds. Bunty's brother, Rab, stays at home and gets almost daily "freshings." Comes a day when he declares he will take no more. Bunty is a busy woman that day!
 Bunty has a fiancé. She and Weelam for going on five years have been saving money with which to set up housekeeping. Weelam has an aunt who wants to marry Tammam and insists on entrusting her savings to the object of her desire.
 Weel—Tammam doesn't want her, but when he borrows the savings to pay back what Jamie took, and thus save the grand old name of Bigger, it looks as if he'd have to take her. Things pile up for Bunty!
 Just at the crucial moment, however, Tammam's past confronts him in the form of Ellen Dunlop, who, it appears, had been left waiting at the church in the sweet bye and bye. Ellen has been the misguided Jamie's landlady and she loves him like a mother. It looks like Tammam is in for a bad time, but—Bunty pulls the strings.
 The picture is beautifully put on. The sub-titles are delightful. And the cast—Cullen Landis and Leatrice Joy and Casson Ferguson and Edythe Chapman. Miss Joy et al. will surely never lack for contracts if they keep up the good work they put into this production.
 By all means see "Bunty Pulls the Strings." You'll not regret it. It is appearing at the Regent.

DANGER LURKS IN MUSHROOMS

Warning Issued Against Careless Use of Fungi

A warning against poisonous mushrooms has been issued by Dr. J. J. Sutter, county health commissioner. He states that every year, between April 10 and May 10, a large number of people are poisoned in this manner and that 75 percent of the victims die.
 It makes no difference whether the fungi are eaten raw or cooked says the bulletin issued by Dr. Sutter. Even decomposed nonpoisonous mushrooms may have extremely harmful effects. Ill effects appear after a period of from six to 15 hours and death occurs in from four to eight days.
 Only a skilled mycologist can distinguish all the different species of mushrooms and separate the edible from the non-edible. Several general rules may be followed. The presence of a ring denotes that the mushroom is non-edible. A poisonous mushroom has white gills while the edible has pink gills. Most puff balls are poisonous. The corn-cob mushroom is harmless. Mushrooms with white spores are poisonous.

MISS BASSETT SUCCEEDS IDA NICHOL AS VISITING NURSE
 Miss Ida Nichol has resigned as visiting rural school nurse of Allen-co, to take effect May 1st. She has been employed for the last two years by Child Welfare department thru the county school superintendent's office. She will be married May 3.
 Her place will be taken by Miss Charlotte Bassett, an Allen-co girl, born in Bath-ti, at present in one of the larger Chicago hospitals. Miss Bassett is quite well known thruout the county.

MAN'S CLAIM OF GREATER INTELLECT MAKES NOTED WOMAN EDUCATOR LAUGH

Dr. Munn-Recht Replies to Dean Turner's Claim of Male Mental Superiority With Some Glaring Facts

(By MARGERY REA)

NEW YORK—(Special)—Women may claim their weak feminine minds full of mere book knowledge, and pass examinations with higher marks than men. Their poor things are really very patient and industrious, and thereby are able to be fuddled many men in this old world.

But the girls can't fool Dean R. Turner, of the Washington Square branch of the New York University. He has exposed women's weak intellectual powers to the faculty of that institution in a few well-chosen phrases. His immediate provocation for the expose, and it is no secret, may be traced to the alarming fact that statistics both in his own college and others, prove women pass higher in examinations than men students. The dean says:

"After all, men are more intellectual than women. Examination papers or no examination papers. Women have better memories and study harder, that's all."

"In tasks requiring patience and industry women win out. But when a man is both patient and industrious he beats a woman any day."

"Take cooking, for instance. A woman when she cooks uses the same old stove in the same old way as she has always done. A man gets impatient and invents a stove that will do the same work better in half the time."

"Who are the chefs at the great hotels? Women? No, men! And as for sewing. Who are the best known clothing designers and ladies' tailors in Paris? Men!"

WOMEN'S CHAMPION REPLIES. But the women of New York University are not without a strong champion in their own dean, Dr. Arslane P. Munn-Recht, graduate of Bryn Mawr and Johns Hopkins University, doctor of medicine, bachelor of arts, wife, mother and housekeeper.

"Men more intellectual than women," she smiled. "Dean Turner said so?"

"It all depends on his definition of intellect. If one means the camera-plate type of memory, which merely registers facts and puts them down on an examination paper, that quality may be in the possession of either man or woman."

"Perhaps it is more common to woman, because thru centuries she has been obliged to keep careful 'track' of the pronouncements of her lord and master."

"If intellect means ability to judge, reason and deduce from facts woman is man's superior."

"Women have more initiative and do not like to go thru the same routine day after day."

"Women add intuition to their intellectual powers, and the combination assists deduction. Women thereby rise to emergencies better than men, because it takes an agile mind to cope with a crisis in affairs."

"Men may fill one calling, such as that of engineer or carpenter, for instance. Woman cooks, sews, nurses, acts as housemaid and often has a job outside her home as well."

"Malinda, wife of William the Conqueror, wore the beautiful Bayeux tapestry. From that day to this all embroidery and lace stitches, which show delicate feminine hands, have been conceived by women."

WOMEN'S STANDING IN CLASSES. "Women here usually stand in the first third of the class—in co-educational classes. That is the majority of the women do."

"Why is it that the men who have led their classes are so often never heard of after they graduated?"

"Since when did literature, language and other similar studies require more concentration and industry than science and mathematics?"

"If women excel in the former, it is because their intellects possess a human interest and offer a chance to express personality which is lacking in the cut and dried sciences."

"I am not a fashion expert but I know that many of the great designers of women's clothes are women—Madame Paquin, Callot, Soeurs Vionet and Lady Duff Gordon, known as 'Luelle'."

"A different situation presents itself in Paris, for instance, because there are dressmaking establishments, like so many concerns in France, are run by husband and wife together, instead of two men partners. The wife often supervises the business and the husband plays a part similar to that of a traveling salesman, or a master of ceremonies who meets the trade."

"As far as cooking is concerned, the pastry cooks and vegetable cooks in hotels are nearly always women. The woman housekeeper usually 'runs' the chef. There are many women to-day operating hotels successfully."

REASON FOR USING OLD STOVES. "Dean Turner says women use the same old stoves while men invent new ones. It is women do this it is because the man of the family often hasn't enough intellect to get cash to buy a new one."

"Women have had so much important work to do that they have not taken time to work out improvements and to perfect labor-saving devices. This is because women are the self-sacrificing members of the race and will work for the betterment of every one else first."

"As for a man's vague power with the dressmaking needle and his taste in that direction, what girl who has spent her hard-earned savings upon a gown cut by a master hand has not heard her best friend speak admiringly of some frump in a dress that looks as if cut by the swing of a woodman's hatchet, but who has had presence of mind to pin a red rose or a tulle upon it?"

"Every maker of feminine creations realizes that the success of the frock depends upon the success of the frills. A gown grown becomes null and void unless worn by a woman who knows how to carry it."

SOCIAL EVENTS PAST, FUTURE

SUGGESTIONS

For Cleaning Carpets.—Take a bar of naphtha soap; be sure your basin or pail of water is hot. Take small brush and clean a small space at a time, have another cloth and rub dry. This takes time and is laborious, but your carpet will look like new.

For spots.—Make a solution of a piece of naphtha soap and a pint of water boiled for about ten minutes; apply to spot. This is very good for light spots.

Carpet Cleaner.—Five cents' worth of chloroform, five cents' worth of ether, five cents' worth of ammonia, one-half bar naphtha soap.

Melt the soap and put in two gallons of hot water; add one teaspoon powdered alum, one teaspoon table salt, two tablespoons chloroform, two tablespoons ether, two tablespoons ammonia. Rub the way of man and let dry.

Mahogany Tables Are Often disfigured with white spots, caused by placing hot dishes upon the table without a mat. Rub in a few drops of sweet oil, then afterwards polish with alcohol and soft cloth.

Varnish.—Remove stubborn varnish with a liquid varnish remover and a sharp sturdy scraper.

Stockings will be less likely to be pulled out of shape if darned on a shoe tree instead of a small darning.

Clean brass kettles before using with salt and vinegar.

When cleaning a brass bed, even if the lacquer is badly worn, it can be beautifully and easily cleaned with the following preparation:

Take one cup of gasoline, one-half cup of household ammonia and one-half cup of washing powder (any kind will do), and mix thoroughly together. Rub this over the brass parts and clean with soft woolen cloth.

The mixture is also excellent for cleaning badly tarnished silverware. Iron beds from which the enamel is badly worn can be given a coat of silver-colored radiator paint. It looks well and bears well.

Veal Pot Roast.—Two pounds shoulder veal, one onion, one salt pepper, one bay leaf, one onion, salt pepper. Put salt pork in kettle, when fried add onion sliced and brown it. Put in veal, brown on all sides, add bay leaf, pepper and a little salt and one cup hot water. Keep just below boiling for two hours, adding hot water occasional.

Remove from kettle, pour fat off, remove liquor, add more water if necessary and make a gravy.

MUST LABEL

Wyoming has passed a law compelling all dealers selling woolen fabrics or garments to plainly label the fabric or garment to inform the buying public of the percentage of wool it contains.

A most enjoyable and delightful concert was given at Bethany Lutheran church by members of the Wittenberg College Glee club, Springfield, Sunday evening.

Members of the club were entertained thruout the day by the various members of the Bethany Lutheran church.

LUNCHEON HELPS

USE EGG DISHES. "STEP in and have lunch with me" how many times, Madam! Housekeeper, will you be saving that to a friend, now that the warm spring days are in prospect?

And you'll not want to run out to the store, either, if your larder is somewhat depleted.

Which is just the time these recipes will help out. For always there will be eggs on hand, and eggs, cooked in the ways described here, make the daintiest kind of luncheon dishes.

That's one reason they're recommended.

The other is that the recipes have been tried out by a domestic science expert who does the cooking for a family of four people. So they're practical.

Try them and see.

EGG FRITTERS. Have ready 4 hard-boiled eggs, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-3 cup milk, 1 egg (yolk and white separated), 2 tablespoons finely chopped ham, 1-2 cup fine chopped veal, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, salt and pepper and dried bread crumbs.

Halve eggs lengthwise and remove yolks. Melt butter in a sauce pan, stir in flour and add milk, stirring constantly. Cook for two minutes and add uncooked egg yolk. Add ham, veal, parsley, hard-boiled egg yolks, lemon juice and salt and pepper. Fill the cavities of the whites (the eggs with the mixture, dip each half in uncooked white of egg and bread crumbs and fry in hot paper and serve.

SPANISH EGGS. Take 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 cups tomato juice, 1 small green pepper, 3 eggs, 1 cup chopped cooked ham, 3 tablespoons chili sauce, salt and pepper.

Melt butter, add green pepper, minced, and stir in flour. Add tomato juice slowly and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Add eggs without heating and lift with a fork while cooking. Add chili sauce, ham, salt and pepper. Serve at once. The amount of salt depends on the saltiness of the ham.

EGGS IN POTATO CASES. Have ready 4 eggs, 2 large potatoes, 2 tablespoons grated cheese, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup white sauce and coarse bread crumbs.

Scrub potatoes and bake until done. Cut in half lengthwise and scoop out the meaty inside. Put a little white sauce in the shell, add an egg poached in salted water. Mix half the cheese with the remaining white sauce and spread lightly over the eggs. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, then cheese and dot with bits of butter. Brown in a hot oven.

CLIMAX WALL PAPER CLEANER. Everybody is economizing this Spring. Clean your walls and ceilings and your window shades with CLIMAX and save the cost of re-decorating. CLIMAX is easiest to use. It does not streak. Any one can use it—countless housewives choose it.

Insist upon CLIMAX. You know that CLIMAX is the best cleaner—so don't accept substitutes. If your dealer is out of CLIMAX buy it somewhere else.

Sold by all good grocery, drug and hardware stores.

JAUNTY WOOL CAPE FOR ALL KINDS OF SPRING WEATHER

Here in America manufacturers are just barely hinting that the cape may be popular in the season. They are showing a few cape coats, but are still rather reticent about promising them as a coming fad. Paris, however, has already adopted the salt pork, one bay leaf, one onion, salt pepper. Put salt pork in kettle, when fried add onion sliced and brown it. Put in veal, brown on all sides, add bay leaf, pepper and a little salt and one cup hot water. Keep just below boiling for two hours, adding hot water occasional.

This jaunty cape here is a type which is very popular with Parisiennes this season. It is made of striped wool material. It is rather short and has a deep cape collar which may roll up high about the neck. It is the type of wrap which may be worn over a suit or frock in all kinds of weather.

SNAKESKIN. In Paris they're wearing gloves made of snakeskin.

They are made from small pythons, the skin being alternating stripes of black and silver and present a most striking effect when worn at full length.

Two small emeralds on the back of the hand imitate the serpent's eyes.

HUBBY GENEROUS; WIFE IS PROVOKED

By HUBIE SMART

Dear Miss Smart: I HAVE been married for some time but my husband has done so many things to provoke me that I don't think I can live with him much longer. His family comes first in everything. He is always saving them money. I think if they tried they could do for themselves as my husband's salary is not so large but what we could very easily dispose of it ourselves. I don't mind for him to give my parents money once in awhile, but they come first in everything. I am thinking about a separation. Do you think it would be alright for me to leave him? A WORRIED WOMAN

Do not think of leaving your husband. Doubtless, in a very short time you would regret it. Bear in mind that one has to give and take in this world.

It is better that your husband is kind and considerate of his relatives than to be thoughtless and selfish. You seem to have made too great an issue of this matter. Of course, if you feel that you are being neglected and that you are having to sacrifice for your husband's people when they could care for themselves, you would probably be justified in complaining and resenting it. You see, it is only natural that your husband should want to help his parents when they are in need. You must remember that some day you will be old and that perhaps you will have to depend upon some one for your livelihood and welfare. As I have said, unless you are having to undergo a great sacrifice, do not try to reproach your husband. Perhaps it was this same generosity and kindness which attracted you to him. Instead of trying to change your husband, you might try to acquire some of his splendid characteristics.

Do not try to crowd your husband's relatives out of his affections. Instead, show a sympathetic understanding of his problems and conquer your jealous attitude and his parents will respect you for it.

Dear Miss Smart: (1) I have bobbed hair. How would you fix it? It doesn't seem to look good parted on one side. (2) How can one have a nice complexion? (3) Are rice and powder harmful to the pores? (4) I am 14 years old and am in the eighth grade. Do you think plain silk stockings would be the better if I am 5 feet tall? They wear both. (5) Do you think pumps with baby toes or brogues would be the most appropriate this year? (6) Do you think three-quarter socks are alright for me to wear? (7) Do you think plain silk stockings or stockings with many patterns or stripes are more appropriate?

AN ODD OR DOW GIRL

(1) If it doesn't look well parted on the side, try it a different style. You know better than I which style is most becoming to you. (2) By caring for the complexion. Always use a pure, facial soap, before retiring it is well to use a good cream. (3) They are harmful to the skin and pores if vanishing cream is not used before applying them. However you are much too young to think of using rouge. (4) Do not wear your dresses too long. (5) Use ox-fords for school wear and the pumps for dress. (6) No, I think you are a little too old for them. (7) Plain silk stockings are more appropriate for a girl your age. The fancier stockings are not worn so much now as so many of the slippers are rather fancy and the plainer stockings look much better.

Dear Miss Smart: (1) I would like very much to know what will remove grease spots from wall paper without spotting it. (2) Al- so, what will clean white straw hats? A HOUSEWIFE

(1) Try wall paper cleaner. You can purchase this at any store handling wall paper or at a drug store. (2) White straw hats may be cleaned very nicely with a mixture of gasoline and plaster of Paris. Mix until a paste is formed. Apply to hat, allow it to dry and remove with a clean brush.

BLUEM'S Market and Elizabeth

THE GOLD GIRL

By JAMES B. HENDRIX

Each morning during the next few days Patty Sinclair saddled her horse and rode into the hills, crossing divides and following creeks and valleys from their sources down to the winding, twisting lengths of the first gun at home. It was heavy and cumbersome, and she realized in her unskilled hand, use would never could she catch so much as a fleeting glimpse of the rider who lurked on her trail.

Accepting as part of the game the fact that her cabin was searched almost daily during her absence, she derived grim enjoyment in contemplation of the searcher's repeated disappointment. Several attempts to surprise the searcher at work proved futile, and she was forced to admit that in the matter of shrewdness and persistence, his ability exceeded her own.

One day she rode out of the hills and following the trail for town, dismounted at Thompson's ranch, nestled in its cool well out upon the bench, and waited for the rancher, who drove up beside a large stack with a load of alfalfa, to unlash his team.

"Have you a good saddle horse for sale?" she asked abruptly.

"What's the matter with the one you got?"

"Nothing at all. He seems to be a good horse. He's fast too, when I want to crowd him. But I need another just as good and as fast as he is. I shall probably never need him but once, but when I do, I shall want him badly." She paused, but without comment the man waited for her to proceed. "I believe I am going followed, and if I am, when I locate the claim, I am going to have to race for the register's office."

"By gosh, an' you want to have a fresh horse here for a change!" Thompson exclaimed, his eyes becoming approving.

"Exactly. Have you got the horse?"

The man nodded. "You bet I've got the horse. I've got a horse out there in the corral that'll run rings around anything in this country unless it's that buckskin of Vil Holland's—an' I guess you ain't got a horse to call to race him."

Patty was on the point of exclaiming that the buckskin was the very horse she would have to race, but instead she smiled.

"How much do you ask for him?" The girl waited breathless, thinking of her diminishing bank account.

Thompson's brow wrinkled. "I hold Lightnin' pretty high," he said, after a pause. "You see, some of us ranchers is holdin' a fast horse handy, a-waitin' fer word from the hills—an' when it comes, they're sure to be the biggest horse-thief roundup in the hill country ever seen, unless I miss my guess they're to be some that's carried their nose pretty high that's goin' to snap down on the end of a tight one."

"Now just you listen to me a minute. I don't want to sell that horse, an' there ain't no mortal use of you buyin' him. He's always here—right in the corral when he ain't in the stable, an' either place, all you got to do is throw yer kak on him an' he's gone."

"But you haven't told me how much you want for your horse," persisted the girl.

She stared at him in surprise. "You mean—"

"I mean that you're plumb well-come to use Lightnin' whenever you need him. An' if they's anything else I can do to help you beat out any ornery cuss that'd try an' hornswoggle you out of yer claim, you can count on me doin' it. An' whether you know it or not, I ain't the only one you can count on in a pinch neither."

The girl rode homeward with a lighter heart than she had known in some time.

CHAPTER IX

The days slipped into weeks as Patty Sinclair carefully and methodically traced valleys to their sources, and explored innumerable coulees and ravines that twisted and turned their tortuous lengths into the very heart of the hills. Rock ledges without number she scanned, many with deep cracks and fissures, and many without them. But not once did she find a ledge that could by any stretch of the imagination be regarded as the ledge of the photograph.

Three times Bethune had called at the cabin. And not once had he alluded to the progress of her work. She had borrowed Watts's team and made a second trip to town for supplies, and the check that she drew in payment cut her bank account in half.

Upon her return from town Patty stopped at the Thompson's for dinner, where she was accorded a royal welcome by the genial rancher and his wife, and where also she met the Rev. Len Christie, the most picturesque and the most unceremonious minister of the gospel she had ever seen.

To all appearances the man might have been a cowboy. He affected chaps of yellow hair, a dark blue flannel shirt, against which flamed a scarf of brilliant crimson caught by means of a vivid green scarf. He wore a roll brimmed Stetson, and carried a six-gun at his belt. A pair of high-heeled boots added a couple of inches to the six-foot-two that nature had provided him with, and he shook hands as he to he enjoyed shaking hands. "I've heard of you, Miss Sinclair, back in town and have looked forward to meeting you on my first trip into the hills. How are my friends the Wattses, these days? And that Reprobate Vil Holland?"

To her surprise Patty noticed that there was affection rather than disapprobation in the word reprobate, and she answered a trifle stiffly: "The Wattses are all well, I think; but, as for Mr. Holland, I really cannot answer."

The person appeared not to notice the constraint but turned to Thompson: "By the way, Tom, who isn't Vil riding the roundup this year? Has he made his strike?"

Thompson grinned. "An' Vil ain't made no strike. Fact is, they's he's some considerable horse liftin' going on lately, an' the stockmen's payin' Vil wages fer to keep his eye peeled. He's out in the hills all the time anyhow with his prospectin', an' they figger the thieves won't pay no 'tention to him, like if a stranger was to begin kidnapping 'round out there."

Thompson's brow wrinkled. "I hold Lightnin' pretty high," he said, after a pause. "You see, some of us ranchers is holdin' a fast horse handy, a-waitin' fer word from the hills—an' when it comes, they're sure to be the biggest horse-thief round in the hill country ever seen, unless I miss my guess they're to be some that's carried their nose pretty high that's goin' to snap down on the end of a tight one."

"Now just you listen to me a minute. I don't want to sell that "Have they got a line on 'em at all?"

"Well," considered Thompson, "not as I know of—exactly. Monk Bethune an' that there Lord Chenderna is hangin' round in hills that's about all I know."

The person nodded. "I saw Bethune in town the other day. Do you know, Tom, I believe there's a bad injun."

"Indian!" cried the girl. "Mr. Bethune is not an Indian!"

Thompson laughed. "Yup, that is, he's a breed. They say his gran'mother was a Cree squaw—daughter of a chief, or somethin'. Anyways, this here Monk, he's a pretty slick article, I guess."

"They're apt to be worse than either the whites or the Indians," Christie explained. "This here Monk Bethune is an educated man which should make him doubly dangerous."

Upon arriving at her cabin Patty was not at all surprised to find that it had been thoroughly searched.

"Oh, if I could only beat him at his own game, and I believe I can!" For several minutes she sat thinking rapidly, and as she lay back upon her pillow, she smiled.

CHAPTER X

Patty awoke at dawn and dressed hurriedly. Shivering in the chilly air, she lighted a match and pushed back a lid of the little cast-iron cook stove. Instead of the "gold fire" of neatly arranged wood and kindlings, that she had built before leaving for town a pile of gray ashes and blackened ends of charcoal greeted her.

"Whoever it was knew he had plenty of time at his disposal so he helped himself to a meal," she muttered angrily.

At the spring she paused in the act of filling her pail and stared at a mark in the mud at the edge of the tiny hill formed by the overflow from the catch basin. She leaned over and examined the mark closely. It was the track of a bare foot. Then, for the first time in many days, the girl threw back her head and laughed. "Microby Dan-deline!" she cried. "And I was picturing some skulking murderer lying in wait to pounce on me at this first opportunity. And here it was only poor little Microby who happened along, and with her natural curiosity pawed over everything in the cabin, and then decided it would be a grand stunt to cook herself a meal and eat it at my table."

After breakfast she saddled her horse and headed up the ravine that she had followed upon the morning of her first ride. At the top of the divide she turned her horse's head and struck into the timber, being careful to avoid Vil Holland's camp by a wide margin. Crossing the timbered plateau, she topped a low divide and found herself at the head of a deep, rocky valley, whose course she could trace for miles up it wound in and out among the hills. Giving her horse his head, she began the descent of the valley, scanning its sides carefully as the animal picked his way slowly among the rock fragments and patches of scrub timber that littered its floor. She had proceeded for perhaps an hour when, in passing the mouth of a ravine that started sharply into the hills she was startled by a rattling of loose stones, and a horse and rider emerged almost directly into her path. The next moment Vil Holland raised the Stetson from his head and addressed her gravely: "Good mornin', Miss Sinclair, I sure didn't mean to come out on you sudden, that way, but Buck slipped on the rocks an' we come mighty near piltin' up. How you comin' on with the prospectin'? Found yer dad's claim yet?"

You ought to know whether I have or not," she retorted hotly.

"That's so. If you had, you wouldn't still be huntin' it, would you?"

"No. And if I had, I'd have had a nice little race on my hands to file it wouldn't I?"

An old saw flashed into the girl's mind, and the corners of her mouth drew into a sarcastic smile.

"I suppose our real acquaintance will begin when the game we're playing comes to a showdown," she sneered. "But let me tell you this, if I win, our acquaintance will end, right where you think it will begin!"

The cowboy nodded. "That's fair an' square. An' if I win—you'll have to be satisfied with what you get. Good day, I've fooled away time enough already."

When her anger had cooled sufficiently, Patty smiled, a rather grim tight-lipped little smile. "If he wins I'll have to be satisfied with what I get," she muttered. "At least he's candid about it. I think, now Mr. Vil Holland and I understand each other perfectly."

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mul-sified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mul-sified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, its very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the heat and soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joint, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

HER OWN CAREER

By PHYLLIS PHILLIPS

THE TRAGEDY

All thru that day Gwenda carried a heavy heart about with her at her work. It was exceedingly hot and humid, and several times she had to stop and rest in one of the parky before going on. She had been assigned to interview a prosperous young business woman, whose salary reached into the five figures, and whose career had been built up slowly but surely in the middle west before she had reached the zenith in New York. A comfortable sort of a person with many bits of good advice to hand out to all aspiring business girls, and a divine faith in herself that was an inspiration to Gwenda's way of thinking.

After an hour's talk with the famous one, Gwenda retired and hid her to the nearest soda fountain to refresh herself. She was not used to handling stories like this. Davis, as a rule, gave her the artistic world as a hunting ground for her talents, and for a time Gwenda felt that she never would be able to do justice to this interview with Miss Marion Winters at all. John Neale and his thoughts all day, try as she would to dismiss him. Now she landed him in some cafe in Paris, with a pretty, black-eyed grisette flirting and coquetting with him as only these little Parisiennes know how, and probably playing fast and loose with his heart. John, splendid John, would be the very one to fail for that sort of stuff for a time, anyhow. Those girls were so clever. They could twist a great big man round their fingers completely. A they had to do was pucker up their eyes and lips and coo at him. Yes, there was no doubt that John was a doomed man.

Littlest, still and tired to death she made her way back to the office, hardly stopping to take off her hat before she sat down to her desk and started to hurry off her copy.

Mr. Davis' voice cut sharply thru the still, summer air, calling her name, imperatively.

chair and made her way over to her chief's desk, wondering, vaguely, what he could be wanting of her at that hour, and especially in the midst of her work.

"Important story here, Miss Channing; attempted murder and suicide—girl involved and all that sort of stuff. Want to get a scoop on it—maybe you can get up there first for us. Someone in on the thing tipped me off. Now rush to the place and get a story. Every fact possible—and if you can borrow or steal a photo of the wife or the man in the case—do so. Go. It's a well known artist—Stepanoff—painter chap—big reputation and a jealous wife. Wife caught him in his studio with another woman, a girl, rather, and shot at him, then killed herself. He's badly wounded—but alive. Great story. You can handle it. Get the girl and make her talk. Our reputation is at stake, remember."

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble for years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. Hursey, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old fashioned remedy a fair trial.

"Stepanoff," gasped Gwenda. "That's it," answered Davis. "Fedyas Stepanoff, lives up on the Square somewhere near you. I think. Maybe you've met him?" He looked up at her white face curiously and added, "Better take a tag."

BIG SCHEDULES FACES OHIO STATE

COLUMBUS — A wealth of material is available for the Ohio State University baseball team this season. In addition to the new men reporting for practice, ten letter men are out to make the team and with this array of talent available, coaches expect Ohio State will make a spirited fight for the "Big Ten" diamond honors.

Fish and Cotter, two veteran pitchers, will be in the lineup, as will Deutscher and Huffman, veteran catchers. The infield will have all tried men, with Slicker at first, Finner at second, Bliss at short, and McMillan at third. There will be one veteran McNulty, in the outfield.

STITCHCOMB TO PLAY
"Pete" Stichcomb, all-American halfback, probably will land a garden position.

Some of the new men who are showing promise include Griffith, Miller and Dudley, pitchers, and Shaw, Pesler, Barnes, Hunsberger and J. W. Hoffman in the outfield.

The Buckeyes will open the season here at Nell Park April 16, preceded by two practice games, April 9, at Zanesville, and April 11, at Ohio Wesleyan. The first of the schedule follows:

Friday, April 29, Indiana
Saturday, April 30, Indiana
Wednesday, May 4, Chicago at Chicago
Saturday, April 7, Illinois at Urbana
Monday, May 9, Cincinnati
Friday, May 13, Indiana at Bloomington
Saturday, May 14, Indiana at Bloomington
Monday, May 16, Michigan
Wednesday, May 18, Cincinnati at Cincinnati
Friday, May 20, Wesleyan at Delaware
Saturday, May 21, Wooster at Wooster
Friday, May 27, Michigan at Ann Arbor
Monday, May 30, Ohio University at Athens
Saturday, June 4, Denison at Granville

GEERS IS TO RACE AGAIN THIS YEAR

Headed by Top Geers, who passed his seventieth birthday Jan. 25, a large training colony, many of whose stables will campaign the Grand Circuit, is getting ready for the racing season at Memphis, Tenn.

HAS PETER JUNE
Geers, who is training eighteen head, the topnotches being Peter June (2:04 1-2), Indietro (2:09 1-2) and June Red (2:05 1-4), after looking over all the trotters at Memphis, has picked the four-year-old, Jeanette Rankin, in Los M. Donald's stable, as the one he thinks most likely to be the sensation of 1921 and the circuit.

The story of Jeanette Rankin is an old one. Twelve months ago she was rated as a heppled pacer and was being trained with the straps.

A CHESTNUT FILLY
She is a chestnut filly, now four, being foaled in 1917 at the Walnut Hall farm, Donerall, Ky. She is by San Francisco, 2:07 3-4, out of Rosa Bellini by Bellini. Jeanette Rankin, a year ago, was being jogged in New Hampshire, her training grounds being the half-mile track at Portsmouth.

INDIANS TO RAISE BANNER APRIL 26

CLEVELAND — The American League championship pennant raising festivities will be held here Tuesday, April 26, when the Detroit Tigers clash with the Cleveland Indians.

In raising the pennant flag so early in the season, the Cleveland club acts aside the precedent for year past of raising the pennant in mid-season.

LIMA FANS TO RAISE MONEY FOR BALL TEAM THIS WEEK

By BILL BARLOW.

LIMA baseball fans will be at bat this week! It is their turn, and they are planning to make it a big week by raising as much money as possible to help Bernie Halloran in his endeavor to put Lima on the baseball map.

Lists were circulated Monday to local baseball fans and it is expected before the week passes that several hundred dollars will be ready to turn over to Halloran.

It is a public spirited drive, in which depends the calibre of a team that will represent this city in games this season which opens a week from next Sunday.

Names of donors will be published exclusively in The Lima News each day, opposite the amounts they pledge to give in support of a real baseball club which has been promised by Halloran.

Uniforms worn by the team last year are but a pile of rags now. New outfits will cost over $300. Besides, Halloran must buy bats, balls, etc., and has much pre-season expense at getting the Murphy-st ball park in condition for games.

Water lines have to be laid to the grandstand. Fences modeled to more comfortably accommodate the crowds that are expected to turn out each Sunday in anticipation of a great game of baseball.

Halloran is negotiating with several big League players and expects to close with them this week.

He has not asked for funds, but the movement was started by several loyal fans who were aware of the unpublished fact that for the past three years Bernie has piloted the team on a non-profit basis.

This year he was going ahead just the same. One business man trotted out with a pledge of raking up $300, and others promised Halloran if he would make it a go they would lend their support to any limit.

It's up to us, boys.

"Dig deep—and dig fast." That's the slogan.

If lists are not passed to you, just mail your check to Bill Barlow or Jimmie Morton and it will certainly be appreciated regardless of its denomination.

WEATHER BLOCKS TRY-OUTS AT MURPHY-ST PARK SUNDAY

Murphy-st ball park Sunday afternoon was a sea of mud and slush, which prohibited the try-outs which had been planned by Bernie Halloran to size up what local material he could count on for berths on the home team this season.

A game is scheduled for next Sunday, to be played at Fort Wayne against the Lincoln Lifes.

This necessitates the holding of several try-outs during the week, which will probably be staged Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings after 5 o'clock.

Halloran was undecided Monday just what steps he will take, as the weather Sunday upset his plans.

Over 25 players had promised Halloran they will try out Sunday, and as many more were expected to be on the field when the trial workouts were to start.

Enthusiasm is rampant, and probably more players than ever will appear at Halloran's next call for candidates.

The popping out of the sun bright and early Monday morning gave promise of clearing up the field, which will permit try-outs early this week.

VAN WERT TRIMS DELPHOS H. S.

DELPHOS — When the smoke of battle cleared away at the end of the 10th inning, the Van Wert high school baseball nine was victorious over Delphos H. S., scoring 16 to the local 9. The score was 16 to 0 at the end of the 9th, and it looked as though another inning would be needed when Van Wert scored thru an error, with 2 downs and one strike, in the last half of the tenth. Opinion was the game was the best ever played between the schools in this section in years. The game was played Saturday at Van Wert.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

YESTERDAY'S HERO — Walter Johnson. The husky Washington pitcher was found for ten hits by the Athletics, but he held them scoreless for eight innings and won 3 to 1.

Wally Pipp led the Yankees "murderers row" with a double and two singles. Muesel smashed a triple and the Yanks beat the Red Sox 4 to 0. Mays allowed only four hits.

McQuillan put two on the bases on the ninth with passes, but he pulled out by a double play and the Braves beat the Robins 4 to 2, in Brooklyn's opening game at home.

All other games — bad weather.

DEMPSEY FAVORED BY GAMBLERS

NEW YORK — Early betting in Wall-st on the Dempsey-Carpentier fight makes the champion a 3 to 2 favorite. The largest known bet so far is $2,000 to $2,000 that Dempsey knocks the Frenchman out in 12 rounds. Odds on the champion are expected to increase before July 2 when the two heavyweights meet in New Jersey.

OUTDOOR SPORTS TO GET UNDER WAY

(By BILL CUNNINGHAM)

Spring athletics are attracting attention at both high schools, South and Central.

The baseball tournaments will be started this week at both schools. These will be extensive series and will last till late Spring.

Besides baseball, there are other spring sports at the two schools. Central H. has taken charge of three of the College tennis courts which will be in condition in 10 days.

TOURNAMENT PROBABLE
If sufficient interest is shown them, as it is now, a tournament for both boys and girls will be staged. Singles and doubles will compete in the tournament. This is a new sport at Central, but one that there has been a demand for for several years. This year under the supervision of Fred Wallace, who is managing all Spring athletics, the tennis teams will be formed and be successful.

It is not yet known definitely whether Central will have Spring football, but a meeting will be held Monday to determine what will be done.

FOOTBALL AT SOUTH
South has been holding Spring football for several weeks and expects to continue it for at least three weeks. New material is being discovered and the outlook for next year's team is unusually bright.

Another attraction that Coach Young has installed at South that has made a hit in his noon hour sports. At noon, every student, boy or girl, who wishes too, can engage in some kind of athletic game. There is baseball, track, cage ball, and many other forms of amusement.

Coach Young has made a decided success at South H. He has proven himself to be a true sportsman and has installed many new and interesting athletics at South that have received much praise from the students.

He is building in Spring practice, a foundation for the best football team that South has ever had. His baseball and track program is also complete and should develop better athletics at South H.

DELPHOS HAS FIGHT C RD ARRANGED

DELPHOS — Encouraged with the support which they received in connection with their first boxing ticket at St. John's auditorium here, arrangements are being made to put on another boxing exhibition here, on May 4, under the auspices of the American Legion.

At a meeting of the Legion Saturday final plans were completed, and Johnny Newton is arranging a card, in which he will "speak" Kasper of this city will both take part. Newton recently battled to a 10-round draw with George Lewis of Toledo. Johnny Shaw, of Cleveland, will go ten rounds with Newton on the next card. The boys are welterweights.

To four-round preliminaries, a six-round, and an eight-round semi-final will also appear on the ticket.

An attempt is being made to sign Newton and Lewis, who recently fought to a no-decision here, to another 10-rounder. Opinions are divided as to whether Newton or his opponent would have carried the decision, and fans are anxious to have the two fight it out, sometime in the near future.

HEAVY SLUGGING IS NOTED AS MAJORS GET INTO PLAY

Baseball's brief 1921 fling hasn't given much to talk about, but the most noticeable thing about the early games was the heavy hitting.

The refusal of the Boston Braves, the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox to become door mats and lend a helping hand pennantward for any of their fellows has also been noteworthy.

The three clubs have shown fight that covers up weaknesses figured to make them poor contenders in the race.

The Athletics have a growing young ball club with pitchers that may come around in form enough to make the Philadelphia series anything but soft for any club.

BRAVES ARE STRONG
The Braves have been showing strength with the bat.

The por work of Brooklyn's all-star pitching staff, also came into notice. Uncle Robby's pitchers have been ineffective and out of form. The Giants likewise have not been strong on the mound.

Pittsburgh showed the best form in the National League. Gibson's trio of slab artists—Cooper, Fonder and Hanton—had too much for Pat Moran's reconstructed Reds and won the series easily. The Pirates seem to be of for a lead that would be anything but comforting to John McGraw.

Mays and Piecy seem to be the only pitchers of the Yankee fold in condition. Mays in particular, has shown fine form.

The Browns also looked like a contender with the Cleveland Indians.

JUST A WARNING AND ADVICE TO TOMMY GIBBONS

NEW YORK — (Special)—Tom Gibbons is a good fighter and has the makings of a champion but the same Thomas is not going to make himself very solid with the boxing fans by skipping around the country picking up "set-ups" and knocking them cold. Gibbons is capable of better things and the idea of grabbing off the soft places for the St. Paul man is all wrong.

Gibbons says he would like to get a crack at Dempsey. Well, if he does, he is aiming in the wrong direction to attract the attention of the champion. Whaling the stuffing out of a lot of decrepits will not place him in a position to make any demands.

Step out, Tom and mingle with the roughest boys you can find. No one is going to pay any attention to you if you don't. Pretty much every one thinks you are a good clever boxer, and that some day you will be in the line for the championship among the heavies. But you must lay off grabbing those dead ones.

20 NEW 'FELLOWS' COMING TO U. S.

Appointed by Belgian Universities for Graduate Study

RESULT OF RELIEF FUND

American Schools to Send Students "Over There"

NEW YORK.—(By International News Service).—Twenty new "Fellows" have been appointed by four Belgian universities to come to America for graduate study for the school year of 1921-1922.

The nominating universities are Ghent, Liege, Brussels and Louvain, the School of Mines at Mons, and the Colonial School at Antwerp; while the thirteen American colleges and universities asked to nominate candidates for study in Belgium for the 1921-1922 academic year are Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, California, Pennsylvania, Chicago, Stanford, Princeton, Vassar, Smith, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Johns Hopkins. The American candidates will be chosen May 1. Four fellowships in each country are renewed.

The origin of the C. R. B. Educational Foundation dates from the armistice, the fund representing residue from the sales of foodstuffs both outside and inside Belgium, largely accrued during the armistice under the Commission for Relief in Belgium which continued in service until April, 1919, and of the Comité National which was the associate organization of the American commission and was made up of a large number of Belgians under the direction of distinguished Belgian business men.

After the armistice it was desirable that the system of providing mass food supplies be continued until such time as Belgium should have re-established herself on a pre-war basis. In November, 1918, there were approximately 900,000 people receiving free food; while the balance of the population, about 7,000,000 people, were still able to find local money with which to pay for their rations.

HOOVER'S SUGGESTION
Under the arrangements of the Comité National the Belgians who had money had always charged themselves a small profit, which was expended in support of the totally destitute. With the armistice, the amazing industry, vitality and ingenuity of the Belgian population showed itself in immediate and the astonishingly rapid reduction of the totally destitute, so that not only was there an accumulation of profits formerly expended for the destitute whose pride prompted them to begin paying as fast as they secured employment or were able to come again into possession of property over which they had lost control during the occupation. There was further profit made in liquidation of surplus foodstuffs and equipment.

No question ever arose but that these "profits" or margins were the property of the people of Belgium. The only question to be determined was how they were to be returned to the public. The Belgian government expressed the desire that they be applied in some manner beneficial to the public and to commemorate the relief organizations of the war. A meeting was arranged by the Belgian authorities at Brussels at which the Prime Minister, speaking on behalf of the ministers, requested Mr. Herbert Hoover to determine the character of this operation. After study and reflection Mr. Hoover proposed the money for education in Belgium. This having been accepted, representatives of the Belgian universities were called into conference.

BRIDGE OF RELATIONSHIP
Ninety-five million francs were made available to enable the Belgian universities and technical schools immediately to resume activities. Further amounts as they become available after final liquidation were allocated to the permanent foundations from which the income only would be expended. This was designed to build a permanent bridge of fine and high relationship between the two countries to become a permanent force in both nations. This balance amounts to about 100,000,000 francs, whose eventual value cannot be determined in the present condition of exchange.

To carry out Mr. Hoover's suggested plans two foundations have formed the foundations Université in Belgium and the C. R. B. Educational Foundation in the United States. They are engaged in the primary functions of opening the institutions of higher learning in Belgium to young men and young women who have not the means to acquire this education of strengthening the financial condition of Belgian universities, of the general advancement of learning in Belgium and the systematic exchange of intellectual ideas between Belgium and America.

PROVIDE STUDENT LOANS
Besides providing for the exchange of fellowships between American and Belgian universities the endowment fund authorizes the granting of student loans to needy young Belgians, subsidies to scholars and research workers in Belgium and financial aid to rehabilitate the Belgian universities that were damaged by the war. It is estimated that approximately 2,000 young Belgian men and women will benefit annually under the loans.

No restrictions are made regarding the sex of the candidates either for scholarships or fellowships. For the C. R. B. Educational Foundation, the secretary of the Foundation Committee of the Foundation, at No. 42 Broadway, New York, has received word that two young women will be among the Belgian exchange fellows for next year, and there is a probability that several young women will be nominated by the American colleges and universities which are eligible to the foundation fellowships. In all five young American women and seventeen young men have been registered in Belgian universities this year.

100 LIVES TAKEN BY TORNADO

Several Villages Wrecked in Sweep of Saturday's Storm

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(By Associated Press).—Relief workers began clearing away debris today of the tornado which swept eastward from Texas Saturday and took a toll of approximately 100 lives, injured several hundred persons and wrecked a score of more villages and farming settlements in six southern states. The known death list stood at 94 with several missing and believed to have been killed.

Hempstead county, Arkansas, reported 41 dead. In Miller county, adjoining, 17 lost their lives; three were killed in Pope county, one in Yellow county and one in Pike. Texas reported nine dead; Alabama 14 and Mississippi 8.

Heavy rain and a sharp drop in temperature which followed in the wake of the storm contributed to the suffering but today with the weather generally clear and temperature returning to normal, reports from all sections indicated the work of rehabilitation well under way.

In Arkansas relief work was being directed by Red Cross headquarters at Texarkana. In other states the task of providing for the homeless and injured is under local relief committees. No general estimate of the property damage has been made as yet.

CHICKENS AT LARGE A REST, NEIGHBORS SAY;
Don't let your chickens run at large if you want to avoid trouble. That's the warning of police after the arrest of Tom Page, 28, of 1430 W. North-st, charged with permitting his chickens to run at large. U. Galloway filed the affidavit against Page, following frequent reports to police.

HOOVER WEPT AS TOLD OF POOR

Tears Shed Over Suffering in Czechoslovakia

BROUGHT TO LIGHT BY GIRL

Incident Told by American Red Cross Nurse

(Written by an American Red Cross Nurse for International News Service)

PRAGUE—I first met Miss Alice Masaryk, oldest daughter of Thomas Masaryk, president of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, this morning when we were pulling out of Prague late one evening. There were three of us in the party. We were bound for an orphanage in Ruthenia, which no less a person than Miss Masaryk herself had begged the Junior Red Cross of America to adopt as its own temporarily.

It was a hot summer evening and we were as tired as long hours of heat and perspiring toil could make us. Our one thought was to find a good night's rest and that as soon as possible.

"Suddenly our little Czech interpreter burst in upon us. "Guess who is on the train?" she said, her eyes shining with excitement.

"Give it up," we replied yawning. "Furthermore, we don't care a continental," drawled lazily our New England companion.

"Oh, but you will when you know. It is Miss Masaryk, the President's daughter, and she is planning to sit up all night." We echoed faintly. "Whatever is the matter with her?"

"She didn't decide to make the trip until too late to engage a wagon list," came the answer. "Well, if that isn't democracy for you I'll eat my hat," sang out a voice of New England. "I doubt if we could match it even in our America. She's a woman after my own heart. And what's more, she isn't going to approve her equal rights and no privileges a minute longer."

"Going to burst with you, Sally Jane, whether you like it or not, and she shall sleep as fine as silk in the soft white berth that is mine."

And without another word or waiting a reply she darted off, returning before we had time to get our thoughts and belongings properly arranged to receive the honored guest.

FATHER A COACHMAN
The President's daughter proved to be a sweet, serious-faced woman with a very great deal of that ladylike thing we call "personal charm."

We liked her at once. We were impressed with her sincerity and quiet grace. She spoke English perfectly. Afterwards, when we knew her better, we learned that her mother was an American, a member of the Garrigue family of Shakespearean fame. Her father, Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk, the President, was a son of a coachman. He had climbed all of the proverbial rounds of the poor boy's ladder, having been in turn a locksmith, a blacksmith and a schoolteacher. It was the last calling that brought him through England and America.

Miss Masaryk, like her father, is a student. She spent two years at Hull House under Jane Addams and was one of the few women students at the University of Prague, where she specialized in medicine, history and sociology.

During the war she was imprisoned in Vienna and held as hostage for her father, whom the Austrian Government could not get within its grasp.

Miss Masaryk told us that the prison period was the greatest school of her life. Here, crowded in a small cell, with twelve other prisoners, her brother slain; her father an exile; her mother in feeble health—she proved the stuff of which heroes and martyrs are made. The letters she wrote while in prison to her mother give rare glimpses into the soul and heart of a great woman.

PERKS HOUSE IN OHIO
Dr. Masaryk, on being called to the presidency of the newly created republic, found himself in some-what the same position as the head of a large family might who suddenly had been forced to move into a very old and very much out of repair house. To make it a habitable and safe place in which to dwell, it had of necessity to be overhauled from cellar to attic.

The Austrian Red Cross had withdrawn at the birth of the Republic. There was a crying need for a similar organization. The President, with keen vision, appointed Miss Masaryk to organize and head this work. In other words, the questions relating to health and happiness of the household were turned over to her. Her previous medical training, her special work and her great understanding of and sympathy for the people, made her the only person in Czechoslovakia able to carry the task thru to a successful end.

Miss Masaryk, on assuming the headship of the Czech Red Cross did not need to look about to find out the condition of the country. It was already written on her heart. All too well she knew that the children's cupboards and porridge bowls were empty. Their cries for help were heard everywhere.

HOOVER WEPTS
The newly-organized house had little to run on. It must get help from outside until it could get itself in order. So it was that Miss Masaryk went to Mr. Hoover in Paris and told him her story.

"I, myself," Miss Masaryk told us, "had seen so much misery that I was hardened. I had only one thought, that of obtaining help. I told my tale simply. It was with surprise that I saw tears rolling down Mr. Hoover's face."

And Mr. Hoover did help. He took over the children's cupboard in needy households. Meals of the correct number of calories were served, and are still being served thruout Czechoslovakia by the American Relief Association.

But the health of the children had been so greatly impaired by the years of undernourishment and privations that it took more than food to make it normal. A remedy must be found and applied at once, unless epidemics of the worst kind should sweep the land. Again Miss Masaryk went outside for help, and this time she knocked at the door of the Junior Red Cross of America.

The Juniors, like Mr. Hoover, answered Miss Masaryk's call at once. Trained workers were sent to Czechoslovakia to solve the health problem of the children. The result was that there started in the Spring of 1920 a game whose popularity vies with our national game of baseball. Thruout the new republic it became known as the "Fight for Health." The children in the public schools of the four largest cities—Prague, Pilsen, Bratislava and Bruno—are now, so to speak, soaked up to their ears in it. Tooth brushes and soap and a cary with seven simple health rules takes the place of bats, balls and score cards in the Czech national game.

THE SCRAMBLING LEGION
Scrub! Scrub! Scrub! There was never such a scrubbing in the history of these old-time cities. Day in the open, correct standing and sitting postures, windows open at night—who in Czechoslovakia had ever heard of these strange customs before?

"I wonder," said one of the Junior Red Cross workers one day as she stood addressing a roomful of children, "if anyone can tell me why it is you are all working so hard to win in the 'Fight for Health'?"

A legion of hands shot into space. A small boy in the corner was given the honor of replying.

"We wish to win because Miss Masaryk, our President's daughter, wishes us to grow into strong and useful men and women."

A woman who can create this sort of feeling thruout a nation; a woman who has the needs of her people constantly in mind, a woman who lets no detail of her large household escape her, cannot fail in her task of converting a very old and very much out of repair house into a healthy, happy home for its children. Such a woman as Miss Masaryk well deserves the name that is hers, a "great daughter of a great President."

DOES "RESIDENCE" ALSO MEAN "HOME"

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—The fine distinction between the meanings of "residence" and "home" was the principle involved in the trial of Eugene H. Vign, millionaire proprietor of several hotels, accused of renting rooms to transients without requiring them to write their addresses in the register.

His attorneys argued that the guests' "residences" were the cities where they lived.

Special Judge James P. Doran, however, held with the policemen that the street addresses were necessary, and finding Vign guilty, fined him $100. Vign appealed.

MUTT AND JEFF—MUTT GETS AN EARFUL ABOUT JEFF AND HIS TWIN BROTHER—

By BUD FISH

SHORT SHAVINGS

A well-known racing and hunting man had an old gardener who was the bone of his life. One day his employer's patience gave way. Tom was told that he must leave the garden.

He earned up potatoes, and remarked stolidly that he considered it his place to remain.

"Go to h— out of that!" stormed his master.

The old man leaned on his spade handle. "An if I do, Master Harry," he said, "I'll just tell your father how you've treated me."

"How's old Mr. Jones?" he inquired. "Will I be likely to see him today?"

"You'll never see Mr. Jones again," said the minister. "Mr. Jones has gone to heaven."

Mr. O'Brien was having heavy going on a slippery pavement in the days before prohibition. He slipped and sat down with force right in front of a judge who happened to know him.

"O'Brien," said the judge, "sinners stand on slippery ground."

"So I see, judge," answered O'Brien. "But it's more than I can do."

A funeral near Limerick was followed by a lunch, at which champagne was served. One of the farmers slipped a glass of the sparkling liquid very dubiously. He tried again; then he sighed.

"These mineral waters are very tasty," he said. "I wonder whether they'll get on the whisky."

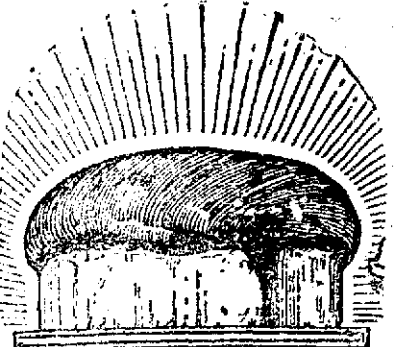

Beauty Secret

KEEP the system clean. Eliminate the poisons. If nature will not do it for you, help nature with a natural medicine like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take a teaspoonful for a few nights and watch the results. There will be a feeling of lightness, the eyes will be bright and sparkling, the lips red, the cheeks pink.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the recognized, standard remedy for constipation, and it is constipation that gives women headache, dullness, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath and bad complexion. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will relieve you over night, and do it gently but thoroughly. It is just a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, so safe that it is given to infants. A sixty-cent bottle will last for months, and last year eight million bottles were bought at drug stores—in itself a guarantee of merit.

TRY IT FREE Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.
